

Convo Inaugurates Annual Chron Subscription Drive

"Buy a nifty fifty," said Herb Taylor in the convocation beginning the subscription drive for the UMD "Chronicle." He emceed the convocation in the auditorium last Tuesday. The program began with numbers by the UMD pep band under Elmer P. Magnell's direction.

Dick Carlson, Jack Coons, Bob Ritchie and Fred Murphy, members of the "M" club quartet, warbled a medley including "Ooga," for their many Hawaiian friends. They sang "Way Down in Columbus, Georgia," in their Tennessee hill-billy style. In a more serious manner Taylor explained why the "Chronicle" campaign is being conducted.

The funds allocated by the business office from the activities fee have been lowered from 80 cents to 50 cents per student each quarter. This amount is not enough to cover the expenses of the "Chronicle." Therefore, the staff is forced to charge the students two dollars for each subscription, Taylor pointed out.

Many of the individuals on the business staff, under the leadership of Rudy Fadlovich, have receipt books and are ready to take subscriptions at any time. The drive will also be conducted at the desk in front of the "Chronicle" office between the hours of 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. Editor Holmes says that this is a school project, solely for the students, and will be conducted through Dec. 9.

MacFarlane, Noted Scot, To Address Convocation

Dr. David L. MacFarlane, president of Kansas State teachers college and national authority on the Scottish people, will speak at the convocation, Tuesday, Dec. 6, on "The Misapprehensive Scot".

Of ancient Scottish lineage, Dr. MacFarlane was born in Lochie Dundee, Angus, Scotland. He came to this country at age of five. After receiving his B.A. and Bachelor of Sacred Theology degrees at Northwestern University, Dr. MacFarlane returned to Scotland to receive his Ph.D. from the University of Edinburgh.

An early interest in history and government nurtured by a short career as a reporter caused Dr. MacFarlane to turn from textile manufacturing to the academic field. Since 1935 when he joined the staff of the Kansas State teachers college, Dr. MacFarlane has risen steadily in his chosen field to his present-day position as president of that college.

Administration Ups Student Assessment

At Tuesday's Student council proceedings, a report of an increase of the activities fee to eleven dollars was presented by Dr. Chester W. Wood, Director of the student personnel service.

This additional fee, approved by the Board of Regents to be effective next quarter, would be allocated to a new student union and to improve Washburn.

The council voted to add Dr. Wood's report to the finance committee's report that is to be considered by the Student council.

Dr. Wood also announced that student activities cards will be needed for winter quarter registration next week. Duplicates may be obtained in the business office.

The constitution of the Klok club was presented and accepted by the council.

Kids Are Traffic Stoppers

Junior Patrolmen Work Efficiently

by Jean Worrall

Those kids who are seen holding up traffic on thoroughfares near UMD are not playing policeman. They are part of a highly-organized system of patrolmen—and patrolwomen — recruited from UMD's laboratory school. The patrolmen are responsible for the safety of lab school students who cross the streets at each of the five stations which are patrolled during five different times each day.

The student patrolmen are chosen from grades five through eight on the basis of leadership and dependability. At the head of the hierarchy are a captain, two lieutenants and two sergeants, elected by the students who are members of the patrol squad.

Captain of the squad is Harvey Bloom, eighth grade student at the lab school, who acts as a roving check-man for the 24-member force. His two lieutenants are Chauncey Riggs and John Hatten.

Acting as a faculty administrator for the miniature police force is George Bergh, instructor at the lab school. Under his direction the first successful patrol force has been established.

Council Should Assist In Fee Distribution

The recent announcement of the one dollar increase in the student activities fee brings to the fore several important issues which must be taken into consideration when the new activities fee is distributed.

• This additional one dollar assessment more clearly exemplifies the fact that the activities fee is no longer an activities fee, in the true sense of the word, but is an incidental charge out of which an individual pays both for student activities and for services and reserve funds.

• The additional one dollar will be used to assist in building up a reserve fund. This fund will be used for the construction of a new student union, some six to eight years hence. Students now attending UMD and now contributing to this fund are entitled to at least a portion of the benefits which will be derived from this additional charge. At least 25% of the money received from the students should be used now to improve conditions in the Washburn "union". The remaining sum should be put in the union reserve fund.

• The additional charge of one dollar brings the incidental fee to a total of 11 dollars or on the basis of 2000 students for three quarters, $66,000 per year. This huge sum must be distributed properly. Great care and deliberation must be required to give this problem the consideration it so rightly deserves. While it is not for the student body to formulate the policies of the institution, nevertheless student opinion can be of tremendous help in gaining a satisfactory solution to this problem of distributing $66,000. The distributing committee, in disbursing the incidental fee, will do well to consider carefully the recommendations concerning fee distribution forthcoming from the Student council.

Aesop's Fable: Three Little Pigs and the Tales Behind Them

By Herbert Taylor

Once upon a time there were three little pigs who lived at a country estate called University Farm. These little pigs were much interested in politics. After hard work and diligent effort each acquired for himself a beautiful office. They took up residence in these offices and were very happy for a time.

But there was a menace in the land. At the headquarters of the Council of Mammals, the representative body of the animal kingdom, a big wolf stood up and said that these offices had a very poor foundation, "In the interest of animals everywhere," said the wolf, "these offices should be torn down and rebuilt on a firmer basis." Three of the mammals disagreed with the wolf, but most said, "He only Ames to please." So they appointed him head of a committee to tear down the offices.

When the pigs heard of the

Editor Holmes Guides Fortunes Of 1950 Annual 'Chronicle'

By Ione Newman

A busy man on campus these days is Jerry Holmes, editor of UMD's yearbook, the "Chronicle." Holmes, a senior, majors in English and has his minor in history.

Holmes' alma mater is Eveleth High, where he was, naturally, on the staff of the school paper and annual.

Besides being editor of the "Chronicle," and an assistant news-editor on the STATESMAN staff, he is also a member of the Student council, Board of publications and the Ranger's club. He holds the position of secretary-treasurer or the Tri-state press association, and president of the local chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journalistic fraternity.

Planning the general layout of the "Chronicle" with help of the staff, setting up divisions for division editors, making the final decision on color of book covers, and the size and theme of the book are duties which have fallen on his shoulders.

Part time practice-teaching at Duluth Central High school adds to this lively personage's repertoire of activities. Holmes spends any spare time he may conjure by hunting, fishing and other outdoor pastimes. During his three year tour with the Navy he became interested in photography, a knowledge which greatly assists him in planning the "Chronicle."

Holmes is a tall, ambling person who, if supplied a .45 Colt, would be an effective representative of the West as Randolph Scott. Perhaps this explains his professed dislike for westerns.

When asked for a personal quote, Holmes mustered his four years linguistic endeavors and eloquently screamed, "Buy a Chronicle!"

Olcott Hall Is Home Of University Buckhorns

At Olcott hall among pianos, horns, and musical paraphanelia of all sorts, the members of the Buckhorns ply their student activities. Music majors augment their program by combining special interests in this social club familiarizing themselves with a diversified interest of music ranging from Bach to "All I Want For Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth." Typical Buckhorn meetings consist of refreshments and discussion of various musical compositions. All members of the club are looking forward to the annual Christmas party to be held Dec. 8.

Last year's "Jazz Concert," sponsored by the UMD Buckhorns, was an outstanding success staged before a packed auditorium. Encore after encore was demanded of the talented UMD musicians at this intellectual jam session.

Although this organization has been only recently formed, in 1946, they have become one of the most colorful and active groups on campus.

The "Coda," their official publication, contains the latest information on musical art and appreciation.

Directing the club affairs this year are president Bob Schaefer, vice-president William Diederich, and secretary-treasurer Phyllis McEldowney.

Council Meetings Open to All

Dear Sir:

The efficient functioning of our Student council depends upon the ability of its members to reflect and express student opinion.

Inasmuch as we have a democratic student government, an understanding of student opinion is essential to it, and the student body is cordially invited to sit in on Student council meetings.

Lee Williams, President
Student council

Who's the Absconding Hound?

Dear Editor:

I see that the "Chronicle" staff is asking students for $2 this year for the annual. Last year the "Chronicle" staff stated that with the $2.40 received from the student activities fee and a $1 contribution from each purchasing student they would build a "Chronicle" we could be proud of. On this basis the annual was published. A recent check with the "Chronicle" office reveals the fact that about 1,000 Chronicles were purchased by the students.

According to registration figures, the "Chronicle" received $4,254.40 of student activities fee money for the year. According to the "Chronicle's" own figures the amount of activities fee money expended in the production of this annual was 1,000 times $2.40 or $2,400.

I, for one, would like to know:

1. What happened to the balance of $1,854.40?
2. What did the "Chronicle" give to those students who could not, or did not, kick in with the extra $1, for the $2.40 of the student's activities fee that the "Chronicle" received?

Yours very truly,
Wm. E. Doyle

LOCKER-ROOM CHATTER

by DAVE DYE

This is the time of the year when all-star football teams are chosen throughout the country. Actually, any collection of the outstanding gridders of the year must necessarily leave off many good, really deserving players. As a matter of fact, any first and second All-American teams would probably be close to equal in ability.

However, despite the difficulties, it is always fun to choose an All-American football team. Instead of the traditional 11-man team, we have joined the switch to the 22-man, offensive, defensive team. In this day of two platoon football teams, specialists are more important than 60-minute players. Many great gridders never line up on an offensive play.

Here is the STATESMAN 1949 All-American team:

Offensive	Position	Defensive
Leon Hart, Notre Dame	E	Leon Hart, Notre Dame
Wade Walker, Oklahoma	T	Al Wistert, Michigan
Rod Franz, California	G	Lewis McFadin, Texas
Tom Novak, Nebraska	C	C. Tonnemaker, Minn.
Stanley West, Oklahoma	G	Ed Bagdon, Mich. St.
Jim Turner, California	T	Jim Martin, Notre Dame
Bud Grant, Minnesota	E	Jim Williams, Rice
Bob Celeri, California	Q	Arnold Galiffa, Army
Chuck Ortmann, Mich.	H	L. Chandnois, Mich. St.
Charles Justice, N. C.	H	Lindy Berry, T. C. U.
Emil Sitko, Notre Dame	F	Dick Kempthorn, Mich.

Big Leon Hart is the only man to be honored on both squads. This bruising end is the outstanding football player in the nation this year.

The backfield selections on an All-American team are always difficult to make. We have chosen Bob Celeri, California's field general to handle the quarterbacking chores. Celeri has carried the Golden Bears into the Rose Bowl by his passing, play-making and signal calling.

The halfbacks are Chuck Ortmann, sensational Michigan passer and runner, and "Choo-Choo" Justice, ace Tarheel sparkplug. The power of this backfield is carried in the legs of Emil Sitko, "Mr. Six Yards" of the Irish national champions.

It is difficult to have to leave off such performers as SMU's Doak Walker, Bob Williams of Notre Dame, Gil Stephenson from Army, and Eddie Price, Tulane fullback, but I believe that our offensive backfield is as good a collection of one quarterback, two halfbacks, and one fullback as can be named. Too many honor teams name four halfbacks or two quarterbacks, a fallacy which no coach would put up with on his team.

The defensive backfield of five men includes about everything a coach could want. Big Clayton Tonnemaker of Minnesota, as brutal a linebacker as ever trotted on a gridiron is joined by specialist Dick Kempthorn, Wolverine linebacker, behind the line. The rest of the secondary has speed, deception and brains in the persons of Lindy Berry, great 60-minute man of TCU, Lynn Chandnois of Michigan State and Arnold Galiffa, brilliant Army performer.

The choices up-front fall nicely into line and packs power, size and speed to run in front of the dream backfield.

All these selections are made on the basis of individual performances, not on team records. I believe that the teams do not make the players, but that the players make the teams.

Girls' Bowling League Swings into Second Round

The Girl's Bowling league resumed action this week after a Thanksgiving lay-off of two weeks. This league meets every Wednesday afternoon at the Pioneer Bowling Lanes and the four teams are currently engaged in their second round-robin of play. The teams are composed of five members, four bowling, and one "rolling out" each week.

Two weeks ago, while Rotvig's Rollers were busy taking two games from Torrance Hall, Ede Boberg, from the Frosh Five, started hitting her stride and took high single from Gladys Dardis with a torrid 166. Miss Dardis, not easily outdone, nearly caught up two games later, and rolled a 161 to take second.

Jan Powell has been consistently picking up difficult splits with her never-failing hook and mastered the 5-7 twice and the 6-7 once.

With the aid of Miss Boberg's 166 the Frosh beat the previous record for high team single with a 538. Gladys Dar-

IM Volleyball, Basketball Provide Action for Many

Ward Wells has a six team volleyball league playing two games a week. Standings on Monday placed Rangers, Proctor and the Faculty all tied for first with 2 games won and one lost. The Skyscrapers, Bulldogs and Gromars have each won one and lost two and are in the league's well populated cellar.

Games this week and next will find each team playing the other five, which will result in changes in the present standings.

Mr. Wells announced a meeting of intramural basketball team captains at 1 p. m., Monday, Dec. 5, in room 100. Twenty teams have thus far signed up for basketball.

Ski Team Gets Call

All candidates for this year's ski team are asked to report to Mr. Wells as soon as possible. Skiers are wanted in all four classes, slalom, cross-country, jumping and downhill. The teams will begin workouts as soon as possible in preparation for several planned meets. The Bulldog ski team is scheduled to participate in a dual contest with the main campus skiers here Jan. 22. Four other meets are scheduled, including the Intercollegiate Invitational meet of which the locals are the defending champions.

Coach Warren Kasch, in his 14th season at St. Cloud, will floor a team boasting six lettermen from the team that finished in a tie for third place last year in the Teachers College conference. Some of the returnees are Kenny Novak, a leading scorer in the Teachers College conference, Dick Banks of Ely, Marv Bergstrom, 6'4" center, speedy Vance Crosby, and guards Bob Nelson and Brink Hanson.

Probable starting lineup for UMD is Rudy Monson at center, Dale Bentz and Ed Westerhaus at the forwards, and Paul Nace and Dick Lundquist at the guards. This lineup is still not definite.

There will be a preliminary contest between the UMD and St. Cloud "B" teams. This game will begin at 7 p. m.

Grid Outlook Dark For 1950 Season

The outlook for UMD's football squad of next season is quite dismal in the eyes of Coach Lloyd Peterson as he looks back over the "year of seniors" just completed. "Unless we get more line material, especially in the tackle department," stated Peterson, "the prospects look rough."

"There is a higher percentage of backfield men returning than linemen, and with the help of a few players from this year's freshman squad, we may be able to offset some of the losses in the key line positions."
